RYANAIR ANSWERS THE STRONG DEMAND BY INCREASING THE NUMBER OF FLIGHTS ON THE TURIN-CATANIA AND TURIN-BARI ROUTES

Turin, 14 August 2020 - Ryanair, the number 1 airline in Europe, announced today (14 August) that it will increase the number of flights on routes from Turin to Catania and Bari. In light of the strong demand from Italian consumers, Ryanair will now operate 10 weekly flights (5 more) between Turin and Catania and 8 weekly flights (3 more) between Turin and Bari, starting from 14 September 2020. Ryanair has also confirmed that both routes will also be operational throughout the winter season.

Ryanair customers departing from Turin can now book a trip to Bari or Catania, flying at the lowest fares and with a new set of health measures that Ryanair has implemented to protect its customers and crew.

To celebrate, Ryanair has launched a special promotion with fares starting from just € 19.99, for travel starting September 14, 2020. The offer is valid for bookings before midnight on Sunday (August 16), only on the Ryanair.com.

Ryanair's Chiara Ravara said:

"Ryanair is pleased to announce the increase in frequencies from Turin to Catania and Bari, which will be implemented from 14 September 2020.

Andrea Andorno, Managing Director of Torino Airport, said:

"The fast recovery of traffic from Turin on national routes, towards the south and the islands, is a clear indication of how people have kept the desire to fly, understanding how safe it is to travel by plane. The important growth from next September in terms of frequencies announced today by Ryanair on many of the domestic routes testifies to this desire to return to normality and above all the willingness on the part of the carrier to invest more and more resources on the Piedmontese airport. "
